Pet Owner Tips

IT'S IN THE DETAILS

Make sure to provide clear and detailed descriptions for your pet's care and your expectations of the pet sitter to avoid an unnecessary calls or interruptions while you're away.

FEEDING

Pro Tip: Take a picture of your pet's food bag and either attach it to the manual or send the image to the pet sitter by text/email for reference.

This way if your pet sitter needs to refill or replace a food, they know exactly which bag to get without any confusion!

LOTS TO SAY WITH LOTS OF PETS?

Make a copy of a page from your Pet Sitter Manual that you need more room to write things out on.

With boxes at the top of each page noted the pet(s) names, you can have 1 page for each pet if needed to outline their specific needs!

GOT A PET THAT'S PRONE TO A SPECIFIC ISSUE?

If you know your pet or its' breed is prone to a specific type of issue (such as ingesting foreign bodies or bloat), attach some resources for noticing signs, symptoms and what to do if they are experiencing any of these issues.

MEDICATIONS

If your pet is taking any medications, make sure that they will have AT LEAST enough for the duration of the pet sitting. This will save you from interruptions while away and if you have a bit more, once you are back you won't have to rush for a refill upon your return.

Pro Tip: Make sure your pet sitter knows the name(s), concentration and dosage of your pet's medication so if a refill is necessary, they know what and where to pick them up.
